Ford's take on crime gets cool reception

Gun violence in Toronto. Premier Dalton McGuinty says this is a time to be 'reflective and not reflexive,' while Mayor Rob Ford's comments baffle community advocates

Police made the first arrest Thursday in the shooting in Scarborough, hours after Premier Dalton McGuinty and Mayor Rob Ford revealed a difference of opinion on how to address gang crime.

Ford, who has demanded rapid action, said he will ask McGuinty at a Monday meeting to fund more officers for the Toronto Anti-Violence Intervention Strategy (TAVIS) police teams that target high-crime neighbourhoods. But McGuinty was cool to the idea, saying he is not looking for quick fixes.

"It's a time for us to be reflective and not reflexive," McGuinty said during a stop in his Ottawa riding Thursday.

McGuinty's comments came a day after Ford said he would ask the prime minister to look at using "immigration laws" to banish people convicted of gun crimes from Toronto.

Ford first made the unusual exile proposal on Wednesday, and later that evening indicated that he wants changes in federal law.

Asked by AM640's Arlene Bynon how convicts could be kept from living in the city, he said: "I don't know, and that's what I'm going to sit down with the prime minister and find out, how our immigration laws work.... Regardless of if they have family or friends, I don't want these people, if they're convicted of a gun crime, to have anything to do with the City of Toronto."

The police have not publicly said that the Scarborough shooting was perpetrated by immigrants. Ford did not explain what he meant, and his comments puzzled community advocates.

"What exactly is he looking for? Getting rid of people who were born here and socialized here because their parents are from somewhere else?" said Sharon Shelton, executive director of Tropicana Community Services, which works with the black community. "I think we need to find that out before I can comment. Because I have no idea what he's saying."

Scot Wortley, a University of Toronto criminologist and gang expert, said Toronto's gang problem is a "homegrown problem, not a problem that's been exported from other countries."

"I think the comments are perplexing on a number of levels. One, because it assumes that immigrants are responsible for most of the gang crimes. Which they're not."

Two people were killed and 23 injured in the Monday shooting at a Scarborough block party. Two others were killed in separate shootings in the next two days.

McGuinty, like Ford, urged Toronto residents to keep the "disconcerting" events in perspective, noting that violent crime statistics have been "moving in the right direction."

Mother grieves. North York victim was 'genuinely good kid'

The mother of Daniel Davis, a 27-year-old shot and killed in North York on Thursday morning, says her son was a good boy who never caused her any grief.

"I never had any problems with him," Andrea Wilks said as she surveyed the scene of the shooting Thursday. "I miss my son. I always will."

The shooting occurred around 1:15 a.m. Residents in the Lawrence Heights area heard shots fired and called police. Officers arrived at the Flemington Public School playground, near Lawrence Avenue West and Allen Road and discovered Davis's body about an hour later. He was declared dead at the scene.

Wilks, still reeling, said she hadn't slept since receiving the news shortly afterward. Though she and her son spent less time together as he got older, they were always on good terms, she said.

"You know teenagers don't want to spend time with their moms."

She added that her son never got into any trouble and she couldn't imagine what led to him being targeted. "There's nothing bad to say about him," she said. "This is definitely not gang-related. He was just in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Tony Murray, a longtime area resident, spent a lot of time with Davis, whom he called "Mr. Snoop," and said he was like a second son.

"To me, he's a part of the family," he said. "He was genuinely a good kid. No drugs, no booze, no cigarettes — that's Mr. Snoop. He's a kid that any parent would be proud of."

Murray and other residents said that, although Davis did not live in the area, he spent a great deal of time there visiting and taking care of his elderly grandmother who lived nearby.

He even attended a community barbecue last Friday, said one neighbour — a peaceful, police-supervised event involving about 60 residents. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Not involved with Danzig shooting: Neighbour

Rumours had spread that he also attended Monday's Danzig Street block party in Scarborough that ended in gunfire and two deaths. But a neighbour who asked not to be named said not true.

"The two are completely unrelated," she said, shaking her head vehemently. "People who know him personally say that's not him. He wasn't there."

According to Const. Wendy Drummond, the police have seen no evidence that Davis was at the Danzig party or involved in any gang.

"We have no information to confirm that," she said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Danzig shooting. Man charged with reckless discharge of a firearm

Police have arrested and charged a 19-year-old man in connection with Monday night's shootings on Danzig Street in Scarborough.

Nahom Tsegazab, of Toronto, remains in custody, charged with reckless discharge of a firearm. The shootings at about 10:40 Monday night near Lawrence Avenue East and Morningside Avenue left two people dead and more than 20 with gunshot wounds.

Shyanne Charles, 14, and Joshua Yasay, 23, died at the scene. Others wounded included a two-year-old boy, whose head was grazed by a bullet.

Toronto police chief Bill Blair called it the "worst incident of gun violence in the city's history."

Another man, Clayton Wright, 42, was killed in a shooting on Tuesday night, and on Wednesday night, 27-year-old Daniel Davis was shot to death behind a school in Lawrence Heights.

Davis' death is the 30th homicide in Toronto this year. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Trial poses questions of police brutality

The video was a little grainy, but the images unmistakable — a Toronto police officer repeatedly elbowing a drunk-driving suspect lying pinned down on a dark city street.

It is the main exhibit at a trial that resumes Friday in a downtown courtroom, where Raymond Costain is seeking to get charges of drunk driving, assault and resisting arrest tossed out, alleging police used excessive force when arresting him in April 2010.

Twenty-one years after the beating of Rodney King by Los Angeles police was caught on camera, law enforcement agencies continue to confront allegations of excessive police force, from the Taser-related death of a Polish visitor in the Vancouver airport to the alleged sex assault of a female prisoner by an Ottawa police officer.

Last week, Torstar News Service reported that a Toronto man, James Bishop, is suing police for the way they arrested him for trespassing while he played basketball in an east-end gym.

"Putting someone on the ground and sitting on them or striking them repeatedly seems extremely unnecessary," says Darryl Richardson, an Occupy Toronto activist who organized a march last week to protest police violence.

Yet Greg Brown, one of the developers of Canada's use-of-force framework, believes police brutality is actually rare because of all the checks in place.

"There are probably a couple of million interactions between police officers and citizens in Canada on a daily basis. A very, very small fraction of those ever result in problems related to excessive use of force, which speaks to how good the training is. Are there cases where it's problematic? Of course there are." Culture chief leaving city hall

Rita Davies, the visionary queen of Toronto culture for more than a decade, is leaving city hall on Friday, Torstar News Service has learned.

"After almost 13 years as the executive director of culture at the City of Toronto, I will be leaving my job on July 20," she wrote in an email to friends and colleagues. Her legacy was to set the city's long-term cultural direction in 2003 with the wide-ranging and detailed Culture Plan for the Creative City. That led to increased grants for the arts and city investments in new projects. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Mow your lawns, tidy your front porches and flash a smile, Toronto — Google Street View is back in town.

For the first time since Toronto landed on the Street View map in 2009, Google has begun a full-scale effort to update its database and recapture the GTA's ever-changing streetscapes, according to spokesman Adam Brindle.

The online street mapping tool, which stitches together panoramic street-level images from 360-degree cameras mounted atop Google vehicles, was first launched in a handful of U.S. cities in 2007 and has since spread to all seven continents. Through the online portal, users can meander down tree-lined streets and explore streets and neighbourhoods around the globe, seeing essentially everything (and everyone) captured at street level the moment the camera-equipped Google vehicle drove by.

Now, it's Toronto's turn for a virtual facelift.

The Street View team has collected data from the GTA in recent years, including last year when a camera-equipped Google tricycle captured hard-to-reach areas like trails and university campuses, but Brindle said the project underway "is the first comprehensive refresh of (Toronto's) imagery."

For the next several weeks, a fleet of Google Street View vehicles equipped with 360-degree panoramic cameras will prowl the city's streets to collect fresh street-level streetscape images to update the online mapping tool.

To ease privacy concerns, Brindle said Google uses "face-blurring technology" to smudge the faces of passersby and vehicle license plates.

Toronto Life employee Cat Yelizarov, 25, said she would likely go the extra mile if she knew the Google car would pass by. "I would want it to capture my good moment. I'd want people to remember me as that girl." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Downward dog meets coyote

If approached by a coyote, experts advise making loud noises and large gestures to intimidate and scare the predator away — never try to run.

Bruce Walsh was midway through his daily yoga routine at an east Toronto park one night last week when he spotted the creature emerging from the shadows.

"At first I didn't know what it was, but it was headed right for me," said Walsh, 52, who jumped out of his pose to get a better look at what he soon realized was a coyote charging across Riverdale Park.

Walsh began to yell, clap his hands and jump, an intimidation tactic he learned years ago in the outdoor adventure program Outward Bound.

Bruce Walsh
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"I'm of the Jaws generation. I'm terrified of being eaten alive ... I was just screaming, 'Coyote, coyote!' Walsh recalled, describing how the animal veered away, but charged two more times before it disappeared.

The "urban coyote" has become a fixture in Greater Toronto's parks, ravines and valleys since migrating east from North America's central plains more than a century ago, its presence reflected in the growing number of sightings reported in recent years.

Brent Patterson, a coyote researcher with Ontario's Ministry of Natural Resources, said "there are probably coyotes in most green spaces across the GTA." For the most part, the predators remain out of sight, he said, sticking to protected green areas, and reserving their activity for the night. But some can, and do, become bold and aggressive with humans.

Bike theft

Architect David Dennis designs Toronto's post-and-ring bike stands. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

New bike stands can withstand two-by-fours

Take comfort, beleaguered cyclists of Toronto, with your expensive U-locks and crippling fears over bike theft — the reinforcements are coming.

Arriving soon on a Toronto sidewalk is a new and improved version of the post-and-ring bike stand, one that can now withstand assaults by two-by-fours.

Six summers ago, news reports emerged that Toronto's ubiquitous bike rings, which have been around since the mid-'80s, have a hidden flaw: the metal rings, which are attached to cylindrical posts, can be broken by thieves wielding two-by-fours.

Now, after several prototypes, a sleeker but "beefier" version of the bike ring is finally poised to hit the streets, city officials say.

Barrie bomb scare

Residents allowed to return home

Special teams of police investigators say they have neutralized the danger of a Barrie home filled with explosives and nearly 60 people living in the neighbourhood were given the green light to return home a week after an evacuation.

"We told all the residents that they can come home to their own beds tonight," said Barrie police Const. Angela Butler.

DAY 22

Tanner Zurkoski is over three weeks into his month-long sojourn of living in a car as part of the Evergreen Brick Works' Move: Transportation Expo. At this point, he's looking forward to the end

LIVING IN A CAR

toronto@metronews.ca

Tanner Zurkoski steps out of his car Thursday for a little stretch after 21 days of living in his car. MELISSA REBER/FOR METRO

It's been three weeks now. General update?

I am ready to be out of this car now. I went through this weird sense of, "I got through it and I'm in a routine," and I was optimistic and enjoying myself — and that's almost completely gone now. The true absurdity of what I've done is dawning on me.

You said last week you were suffering from road rage. How are you dealing with this?

I met with a clinical psychologist. He specializes in rage issues. His stance is that road rage is not in and of itself a problem, but it just exacerbates existing conditions. So if you go into a car upset you are much more likely to be triggered during the ride. So he gave me some tips on calming down and having a very Zen-like approach to driving.

What cool stuff have you been up to?

I raced a bike from the Evergreen Brickworks to downtown, and he beat me. Not by much, about 30 seconds. We did it at 8:30 in the morning trying to use realistic traffic conditions but I was lucky because for some reason there was no one on the DVP. This week I am racing someone on a GO train from, I think, Vaughan. She's going to be on a train and I'll be in traffic — so that might be a little more one-sided.

What are you doing for exercise?

I was going for a run in the mornings, I know I should more often, but it's really hard to motivate yourself to get up and go for a run after a five-hour, incredibly uncomfortable sleep in a car. I did car yoga this week. (The instructor) taught me a number of things. You're limited to what you can do in a car — downward dog is kind of out of the question — but there is a lot of upper-body stretching and core stuff you can do, and breathing, which is key.

Any run-ins with nature?

I woke up one day with a raccoon on the hood of the car looking in at me. And then he saw that I was awake, so he started to slowly back off the hood and slid off the car. Then he slowly crawled up a post in front of the car. ... he basically thought I was a T-Rex and that if he moved slowly enough I wouldn't eat him.

After 10-year battle, cottage-country condos set to launch within a GO Transit ride of T.O.

A view of work being done on the Lake Simcoe project Friday Harbour, a 1000-slip marina, golf course and condo/town house project. CONTRIBUTED

Earl Rumm may go down in history not so much as the first developer to reinvent cottage living, but as the first to bring it within a GO Transit ride of Toronto.

But it's doubtful he will be the last. This fall, his Markham-based company Geranium Corp. will launch sales of its boldly renamed Friday Harbour development on Lake Simcoe — a $1.5-billion project which boasts a Doug Carrick-designed golf course, a hotel, mega-marina and 2,000 residential units.

They include three- and four-storey condo buildings, townhomes and houses that will be plunked on "islands" created during the major excavation of the sensitive Lake Simcoe shoreline to create a 13-hectare, 1,000-slip marina.

But it's taken a 10-year battle, appeals to the Ontario Municipal Board and a lawsuit against wealthy area cottagers and locals who were vociferous in their opposition to what's much better known as the Big Bay Point Resort.

Think of Friday Harbour as the biggest recreational development to hit Ontario cottage country since Intrawest transformed Blue Mountain from a quaint little ski hill into a bustling four-season resort.

Rumm, a major residential developer in the GTA, has faced a rough ride in his efforts to transport the condo out of the city and "reinvent" cottage living for baby boomers who love the lake but are weary of the constant upkeep.

The project's also aimed at young families with big-city mortgages looking for an affordable alternative to Muskoka's multi-million-dollar mansions.

No vehicles on the DVP? Imagine that

Forward thinking. Exhibit shows how the natural beauty of the Don Valley can be reclaimed

toronto@metronews.ca

No more cars on the Don Valley Parkway in 25 years — a harebrained or an ingenious idea?

That is just one of the future options for the DVP that can be seen at the Parkway of Least Resistance (PoLR) exhibit, part of the Move: Transportation Expo at the Brick Works.

The exhibit team's main goal is to reclaim the natural beauty of the Don Valley for walking, biking and camping, while implementing TTC or GO buses and trains as the only transit option by 2040.

Roberto Chiotti, lead designer of the PoLR team, says the existing structure is over capacity and solutions need to come quickly.

"A road designed for 60,000 people in cars is now trying to make room for 100,000 people," said Chiotti, adding that the issue was urgent.

The exhibit also explores the pros and cons of adding a double-decker highway or a new subway line under the existing highway route.

However, Chiotti sees a carless DVP as the best option.

"That solution compared to the other options will move more people in less time and for a fraction of the cost," Chiotti added.

One step already made in that direction might be the GO bus bypass lane on the DVP.

Located on the shoulder of the DVP from Lawrence Avenue to York Mills Road, it allows GO bus drivers to get around slow moving or stopped traffic.

Mark Ostler, media relations and issue specialist for Metrolinx, says the bypass lanes have improved on-time performance for travellers and has other benefits.

"The addition of bus bypass lanes does indeed reduce the number of GO buses idling in traffic. Notably, a GO bus carries 57 passengers, meaning each bus has the potential to remove 57 cars and their related pollution from our congested highways."

A second bypass lane was recently approved to run from St. Dennis Drive to Pottery Road.

‘Toughest sheriff’ battles racism claims

Maricopa County, Ariz., sheriff Joe Arpaio exits after announcing on Tuesday in Phoenix that President Obama’s birth certificate is a forgery based on an investigation by the sheriff’s office. MATT YORK/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Arizona. Plaintiffs say officers based some traffic stops on the race of Hispanics

For six years, the self-proclaimed toughest sheriff in America has vehemently denied allegations that his deputies racially profile Latinos in his trademark immigration patrols.

Now Joe Arpaio, the sheriff in Arizona’s most populous county, Maricopa, will have to convince a federal judge presiding over a lawsuit that went to trial Thursday and is expected to last until early August.

The plaintiffs say Arpaio’s officers based some traffic stops on the race of Hispanics who were in vehicles, had no probable cause to pull them over and made the stops so they could inquire about their immigration status.

The lawsuit will serve as a bellwether for a similar yet broader civil-rights suit filed against Arpaio in May by the U.S. Department of Justice.

Arpaio has said the lawsuit is a politically motivated attack by the Obama administration as a way to court Latino voters in a presidential election year. Justice officials say the department began its initial civil-rights inquiry of Arpaio’s office during the Bush administration and notified the sheriff of its formal investigation a few months after Obama took office.

Abuse scandal. Priest awaits sentencing for ‘covering up’ exploits

The first U.S. church official convicted of endangering children in a priest abuse scandal asked Thursday for a sentence of house arrest or probation, calling a long prison term “cruel and unusual.”

Monsignor William Lynn, 61, of Philadelphia awaits sentencing Tuesday.

Lynn, the former secretary for clergy at the city’s Roman Catholic archdiocese, handled priest assignments and child-sexual-assault complaints from 1992 to 2004.

He faces up to seven years in prison after a jury convicted him last month of felony child endangerment for his oversight of now-defrocked priest Edward Avery.

Avery is serving up to five years in prison after pleading guilty to child sexual assault and conspiracy.

Prosecutors spent a decade investigating hundreds of sex-abuse complaints kept in secret files at the archdiocese and issued two damning grand-jury reports. They argue that Lynn and unindicted co-conspirators in the church hierarchy kept children in danger by covering up reports that priests were molesting children.

Lynn reviewed the secret files in 1994 and sent a list of 35 problem priests to Cardinal Anthony Bevilacqua. The cardinal had the list shredded, according to a memo the church turned over after Bevilacqua died in January.

Defence lawyers argued in a sentencing memo filed Thursday that Lynn should not serve more time than abusers themselves.

“Monsignor Lynn has never harboured any intent to harm a child,” lawyers Thomas Bergstrom and Jeffrey Lindy wrote. They called a seven-year term cruel and unusual.

Lynn has spent a month in prison since the verdict. He now seeks a term of time served combined with house arrest, community service, work release or probation.

Liberia ex-president appeals convictions

Former Liberian President Charles Taylor has appealed his war-crimes and crimes-against-humanity convictions and his 50-year sentence, calling them a miscarriage of justice. Prosecutors on Thursday also appealed the Special Court for Sierra Leone’s decision to acquit Taylor on more serious charges and urged judges to increase his sentence to 80 years. Taylor, 64, became the first former head of state since World War II to be convicted by an international war-crimes court.

U.S. court urges Disneyland to allow Segways

Court sides with disabled patron.
Disneyland sued after refusing to allow disabled visitor to use her Segway at theme park

Disneyland currently allows disabled visitors to use wheelchairs and scooters at the Anaheim, Ca. theme park, but the justices of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco said it's time for "The Happiest Place on Earth" to study the idea of adding Segways.

"We have every confidence that the organization that, half a century ago, brought us the Carousel of Progress and Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln can lead the way in using new technology to make its parks more welcoming to disabled guests," Chief Judge Alex Kozinski wrote for the court.

Segway and General Motors are working to develop the two-wheel electric vehicle for cities. JIN LEE/AP

The ruling comes in the case of Tina Baughman, who uses a two-wheeled Segway to get around because she has limb girdle muscular dystrophy, which makes it difficult to walk or rise from a seated position.

Segway operators use the transportation device in a standing position.

Baughman went to Disneyland to celebrate her daughter's eighth birthday.

She explained her disability but said Disneyland refused to allow her to use the Segway at the theme park.

Baughman filed the lawsuit against Walt Disney World Co. under the Americans With Disabilities Act.

The court said as new devices become available, public accommodations must consider using them for the disabled.

Security footage shows suspected Bulgaria bomber

Suicide bombing. Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu points finger at Iran, threatens retaliation

An Israeli survivor from a bombing that killed seven people in Bulgaria.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A lanky, long-haired man wearing a baseball cap and plaid shorts with a fake Michigan driver's license carried out a deadly suicide attack on a bus full of Israeli vacationers, Bulgarian officials said Thursday.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu blamed the attack on Iranian-backed Hezbollah, a Lebanese Shiite Muslim guerrilla group, and threatened retaliation. Seven people — five Israelis, the Bulgarian driver and the bomber — died in the blast Wednesday.

Although no group claimed responsibility, Israel has attributed a series of attacks on its citizens around the world in recent months to Iran and its Shiite proxies, threatening to escalate a shadow war between the two arch-enemies.

The attack occurred shortly after the Israelis boarded a bus outside the airport in the Black Sea resort town of Burgas, a popular destination for Israeli tourists — particularly for high school graduates before they are drafted into military service.

Security camera footage aired Thursday showed the suspected bomber wandering in and out of the terminal shortly before the blast. Officials said the bomb detonated in the luggage compartment.

Business as usual

Israeli travellers undeterred

This week's suicide bombing in Bulgaria has made it clear that being an Israeli traveller can be risky business. But Israel's famously globe-trotting people show no signs of curbing their wanderlust, even if the globe seems to offer a shrinking number of safe destinations for them.

Long accustomed to dealing with terrorism, Israelis have always been quick to return to their routines following tragedies. The Bulgaria bombing appeared to be no exception. At Israel's Ben-Gurion International Airport on Thursday, travellers were jittery, but it was largely business as usual.

Stocking up for the Muslim holy fasting month

Court win. Mosque repairs don't prevent celebration

Tennessee Muslims who won a court battle to occupy their new mosque learned Thursday they won't be able to begin worshipping there for the start of Ramadan because it needs about two weeks more of construction work.

Still, members of the Islamic Center of Murfreesboro were celebrating their legal victory after being buffeted for two years by a lawsuit in which they had no say.

"I think it was a very good day yesterday, and thank God!" mosque board chairman Essam Fathy said.

"It surprised all of us. It was an unexpected joy!"

Construction supervisor David Salimi said it would take about two more weeks of work to be ready. That includes connecting the water and power.

Mosque opponents sued Rutherford County in September 2010 to stop construction of the new building.

Assad. Syrian president makes rare TV appearance

Syrian President Bashar Assad made his first appearance since a brazen bomb attack killed three members of his inner circle while government troops launched a wide-ranging assault on Thursday to snuff out rebels throughout the capital city, Damascus.

Anti-regime activists said government troops used mortars, tanks and helicopter gunships against rebels throughout Damascus and its suburbs. But the military's failure to swiftly vanquish lightly-armed rebel forces and the deadly bombing of a high-level security meeting a day earlier made Assad's hold on power look increasingly tenuous.

Amateur video showed rebels taking over the Bab al-Hawa border crossing with Turkey, where they stomped on portraits of Assad and his father and predecessor, Hafez Assad. A state TV report showed Assad swearing in his new defence minister. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Child abductor gets emotional in B.C. court

Randall Hopley is led out of the Cranbrook, B.C., courthouse last fall. He has admitted to abducting a three-year-old boy. BILL GRAVELAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Admitted child abductor Randall Hopley was fighting his emotions Thursday as he was forced to watch a videotaped meeting between himself and the father of his three-year-old victim.

Sitting with his head bowed down in a courtroom in Cranbrook, B.C., Hopley struggled to hold back the tears as the video showed Paul Hebert telling Hopley that he forgave him for abducting his son, Kienan, and thanked him for the boy's safe return.

"There was no sexual assault at all," Hopley said in the video interview, played on the second day of his sentencing hearing.

Hebert asked Hopley if he was heterosexual or whether he only liked children.

"Oh yes. I prefer women," replied Hopley.

"Children, but not in a sexual way. It was nothing to do with sex."

In the interview, Hopley is reminded about a previous incident involving an assault on a young boy, but Hopley said he would never have done anything to someone as young as Kienan.

"That was in the past. I don't want to go back there," Hopley said softly.

Hopley was convicted in 1985 of sexually assaulting a five-year-old boy

"If I hurt a three-year-old, I would just take myself out in the bush and shoot myself," he continued.

"I believe you," replied Hebert. "You took my son from me and I forgive you. Change yourself. Be a better person."

Hopley, who turns 47 next week, has already pleaded guilty to abducting Kienan Hebert from the boy's home in Sparwood, a southeastern B.C. town near the Alberta boundary, last September.

Kienan vanished from his bedroom in the middle of the night wearing Scooby Doo boxer shorts, prompting police to launch a massive search.

The operation grew over several days, with police issuing an Amber Alert that was eventually expanded to include Alberta. The boy was returned unharmed four days later and Hopley was arrested at a nearby Bible camp.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

The road ahead

An actual sentence isn't expected to be handed down soon. The Crown wants to proceed with a harsher approach, asking that Hopley be subjected to an assessment to determine whether he should be labelled a dangerous or long-term offender.

- Hopley's previous convictions include sexual assault and abduction.

Myanmar TV airs tribute to independence hero

Sign of change.
Aung San memorial ceremony broadcast for first time in years

Myanmar opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi, centre, greets diplomats during a ceremony to mark the Martyr's Day at the headquarters of her National League for Democracy party Thursday in Yangon, Myanmar. KHIN MAUNG WIN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Myanmar state television broadcast a memorial ceremony for opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi's revered independence hero father for the first time in decades Thursday, the latest sign of change in the former pariah nation.

The day marks the 65th anniversary of the 1947 assassination of opposition leader Suu Kyi's father, Gen. Aung San.

Myanmar's former military junta played down the event for more than 20 years as part of efforts to stem the popularity of Suu Kyi, who has led a pro-democracy movement since 1988 and was kept under house arrest for 15 years. The junta ceded power last year to a civilian government dominated by retired army officers, which has since embarked on a program of major political and financial reforms that have been lauded by the international community.

Slain leader

Aung San was 32 years old when he was gunned down on July 19, 1947, along with six cabinet ministers and two other officials.

- He is considered the architect of Myanmar's independence from Britain, which it achieved several months after his death.

On Thursday, Martyr's Day ceremonies were broadcast live on state television, and the government dispatched one of the nation's two vice-presidents to attend. Last year, the government's top representative was the mayor of the largest city, Yangon.

With flags flying at half-staff, Vice-President Sai Mauk Kham joined Suu Kyi as she laid three baskets of flowers in front of her father's tomb in Yangon, near the foot of towering golden Shwedagon pagoda. Sai Mauk Kham laid a wreath of white orchids and saluted the slain leader as a solemn two-minute silence was observed.

India's top carmaker shuts factory after deadly riot

Security guards stand near a burnt-down reception block of Maruti Suzuki's factory in Manesar, near New Delhi, India, on Thursday. India's largest passenger carmaker shut the 550,000-vehicle-a-year plant — one of two factories in India — after rioting sparked by a labour dispute killed one person and injured dozens of others. The company is still trying to identify the body found charred beyond recognition in a conference room. Labour unrest is a growing concern in India, as soaring inflation squeezes worker salaries even as mass media and conspicuous consumption stoke aspirations. The widespread use of contract workers by companies eager to sidestep India's strict labour laws adds to friction. SAURABH DAS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rising fees turning many Canadians off

Survey. Percentage of customers satisfied by the performance of their bank drops steeply from last year

Canadian bank customers surveyed in an annual poll are less satisfied with their financial institutions than they were a year ago, at least partly due to the rising fees they're being charged.

The survey from J.D. Power and Associates, released Thursday, found that the percentage of customers who say they will "definitely" reuse their bank in the future declined by four percentage points since a year ago.

And the number of respondents who said they would "definitely" recommend their bank dropped five percentage points from last year.

Frustration, confusion

"Not only are customers frustrated with changes to their fee structure, but many are also confused by the changes."

Lubo Li, senior director of financial services at J.D. Power

At least part of the rising discontent was tied to a greater number of customers who have been slapped with higher fees, with 27 per cent of respondents saying their charges went up this year, compared with 17 per cent in 2011. Many of the respondents also said they had a lower overall opinion of the reliability and financial stability of their banks.

Satisfaction with online banking slid eight percentage points over last year, mostly due to problems navigating websites, and a lack of some services.

On the upside, customers said they were largely happy with financial advisers at the banks, though this is the first time the survey asked respondents about them.

The highest ranked of the big five Canadian banks was TD Bank, which has consistently led the results since the survey was launched seven years ago. ING Direct Canada ranked the highest of the midsize banks.

The annual J.D. Power survey polled 12,000 Canadians who use either banks or credit unions. Included were the big five Canadian banks — Royal Bank, Scotiabank, CIBC, Bank of Montreal and TD Bank — as well as midsize banks.

Fire fears force recall of 2013 Escapes

Ford Motor Co. is telling Canadian and U.S. owners of one version of the brand-new Ford Escape not to drive the SUVs until dealers can fix fuel lines that can crack and spill gasoline, causing engine fires.

The company issued the unusual warning on Thursday and said it is recalling 2013 Escapes equipped with 1.6-litre four-cylinder engines.

Ford says it has three reports of fires: Two at the factory and one while a customer was driving an Escape. No one has been injured.

The recall affects 11,500 Escapes in the U.S. and Canada. Only 4,800 have been sold to customers. The rest are on dealer lots and will be fixed before they are sold, spokeswoman Marcey Zwiebel said.

"We are obviously taking very quick action in the interest of our customers' safety," she said.

1 Flag raiser. Our Canadian athletes take to the world stage starting next week at the Summer Olympics in London. Veteran triathlete and two-time Olympic medallist Simon Whitfield from Victoria, B.C., will be the Canadian flag bearer for the opening ceremony. You can follow the team on Twitter @CDNOlympicTeam. Go Canada go!

2 Carrie Underwood surprise. Restaurant-goers (myself included) at a pub in Peterborough, Ont., got quite the shock Saturday night when country-music star Carrie Underwood walked in with her hubby, NHL player Mike Fisher. Fisher's brother had tied the knot earlier that day, and a big group from the wedding reception — including the famous couple — showed up there to party. And, no, she didn't sing for us.

3 The Dark Knight Rises. Holy hype, Batman! RottenTomatoes.com for the first time in its history was forced to block users from making comments on a film this week after critics received threatening comments for writing negative reviews about the movie. "It just got to be too much hate based on reactions to reviews of movies that people hadn't even seen," said the site's editor. The film opens Friday.

4 Microsoft marketplace. Microsoft is opening a new retail location at the Yorkdale mall in Toronto in the fall, the site of its first international retail expansion. Apparently the city has the right demographics for the company — a solid mix of families and tech enthusiasts. They do have some stiff competition in the mall, however: an Apple store.

5 The Bachelorette finale. The season finale airs this Sunday, and fans are speculating about whether Emily will choose Arie or Jef. Or whether she'll choose neither. Or whether she'll choose both? Hey, she can't do that! Speculation is it's Jef. In any case, several of Emily's castoffs will rebound on The Bachelor Pad, which premieres Monday.

6 Vancouver's congestion. Vancouver is Canada's most traffic-congested city — second only to Los Angeles in North America, according to a congestion index. Vancouver drivers take on average 30 per cent longer to make a trip at congested times than when roads and highways are free-flowing. Toronto was ninth at 22 per cent. Now I feel so much better commuting on the 401.

7 Springsteen and McCartney. Concert organizers pulled the plug on the music legends after they played past their sound curfew at London's Hyde Park. They were on stage together and about to complete the show when their microphones went silent. If I'm singing, you pull the plug right away. If it's The Boss with a Beatle, you never pull it.

8 Marissa Mayer, CEO. Previously one of the top executives at Google, she was announced as the new CEO of Yahoo this week, making her one of the most powerful women in corporate America. Shortly after tweeting "I'm incredibly excited to start my new role at Yahoo! tomorrow," she tweeted another surprise: "Another piece of good news today - @zackbogue and I are expecting a new baby boy!" Girl power!

9 Setting off the censor. Forty-one-year-old Jonah Falcon was stopped by security at San Francisco International Airport last week because of a bulging "package" in his pants. Turns out it wasn't a weapon — but rather his anatomy. Yes, he's the world-record-holder for largest recorded penis: nine inches flaccid, 13.5 inches erect. Now this is one thing guys would be willing to be stopped for.

10 Rich Kids of Instagram. A Tumblr blog called The Rich Kids of Instagram has started up, which shows photos of rich kids from the likes of the Hamptons, Beverly Hills and the Big Apple doing things rich kids do — like flying in private planes and driving fancy cars. They're the children of the one per cent. Follow them on Twitter as well at @richkidsofinsta.

11 Fifty Shades of Grey effect. Total E-Bound Publishing has introduced Clandestine Classics — with literary gems such as Jane Eyre and Pride and Prejudice getting an erotic makeover — believing there is an untapped market among a new generation for racy versions of the 19th-century novels by the likes of Charlotte Brontë and Jane Austen. Enough already with the Fifty Shades of overreaction!

SCOTT GUNDERSEN

'Up-cycling' portraiture

Wine corks used to create art

Anyone who truly loves wine will know about that insatiable desire to collect corks of your favourite bottles of red and white wine. Yet hoarding all those pieces of tree bark for sentimental value could be a sign of a pretty mischievous habit.

Here, artist Scott Gundersen shows how to use those corks to beautiful effect. The 33-year-old "up-cycles" thousands of used wine corks into amazing portraits. The portrait Grace, pictured, is made up of a staggering 9,217 wine corks and almost double that amount in nails, which hold the corks in place.

METRO

An eye for colour

Do you have to paint the corks?
That would be a terribly time-consuming thing, so I use the wine-tainted corks exactly as they are, with one exception. My Rwandan friend Grace, the subject of this portrait, has dark black hair and it is very difficult to find corks dark enough to replicate that. So to have enough dark corks I bought some wine that creates a very dark stain. I boiled it on the stove to concentrate the colour and then dyed a batch of corks before placing them onto my nail board.

The final installment of Chris Nolan's Batman trilogy is missing one thing — a great villain. HANDOUT

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Bring on the bad guys

The Dark Knight Rises. The finale in the Nolan trilogy is reminiscent of the beginning — but it needs a better villain

Richard: Mark, this story seemed like it played out in real life on our streets, albeit without capes, gadgets and murderous villains. When Selina purrs "You're all going to wonder how you ever thought you could live so large, and leave so little for the rest of us," into Bruce's ear, it sounds ripped from the headlines. Such is the timeliness of the film, but is this is a summer blockbuster, or a treatise on the haves and the have-nots?

Mark: The movie comes out squarely on the side of law, order, and social hierarchy. Chris Nolan is smart enough to know that if he wants to make blockbusters he isn't going to get financing from the 99 per cent. So the politics of the film are a bit confused, but the rest of it works. It's smart, if a bit talky, and beautifully cast. The big question is: Is it as good as The Dark Knight?

RC: I think it is more easily comparable to Batman Begins. Both those movies have the same kind of tone. As for The Dark Knight, I'd have to say it's as good, but in a different way. It's a more structured, linear film, mainly because the villain is more straightforward. Bane is a troublemaker — he's one part modern day terrorist, two parts Attila the Hun — but he lacks the Joker's unpredictability, which is the thing that made the middle movie such a treat.

MB: Yes, what's missing from this film is a great villain. It's hard to enjoy Bane through his face mask — Darth Vader he's not. Instead of The Joker, we now have The Mumbler. And many of the characters' motivations seemed unclear to me, especially Catwoman, although I liked Anne Hathaway in the role. She gets the best lines AND the best outfits. But it's Joseph Gordon-Levitt that really occupies the heart of the movie. He's the only one that seems human in it, so kudos to him.

RC: Agreed about Gordon-Levitt but I liked Bane's slightly nutty Shakespearean villain, even if some of his dialogue ended up sounding like a garbled mixture of drunken whispers and baby talk. Also, Hathaway, for my money, rocks it.

MB: She usually does, doesn't she ... If I seem a bit unenthusiastic about the movie, it's just that the last Batman was darn near perfect. It's a tough act to follow, but a few more action sequences and a more focused story would have helped.

Synopsis

Eight movie years have passed since Batman (Christian Bale) last donned the cape. He's become a recluse, having assumed responsibility for District Attorney Harvey Dent's crimes in the hopes that if the Dent anti-crime act worked Gotham would be peaceful. It was successful until a cat burglar named Selina Kyle (Anne Hathaway) put into motion a series of events that would draw the caped Crusader from retirement to fight his mightiest foe yet, Bane (Tom Hardy).

Scene in brief

Fred Willard caught in lewd act?

Actor Fred Willard, perhaps best-known as a dog-show announcer in the movie Best in Show, has been arrested on suspicion of committing a lewd act at a Hollywood adult theatre. Los Angeles police Sgt. Mark Ro says uniformed vice officers were conducting a routine investigation of the theatre shortly before 9 p.m. Wednesday and saw Willard engaging in a lewd act. Ro says Willard appeared to be alone. The 72-year-old actor was booked at the Hollywood police station on suspicion of committing a lewd act in public. Ro says Willard was released after midnight without posting bail.

The Redemption of General Butt Naked

Directors. Daniele Anastasion, Eric Strauss

Stars. Joseph Blahyi

From 1989 to 1996, Joseph Blahyi (aka General Butt Naked) estimates he was responsible for the deaths of 20,000 Liberians. But in 1996, he left the civil war to become an evangelist and preach the gospel.
The thought-provoking documentary follows Blahyi as he attempts to reconcile with the families of those he killed and the child soldiers whose lives he destroyed. The Redemption of General Butt Naked will force audiences to grapple with the question, "Just because a man is now good, should he be forgiven for his past sins?"

Director. Bess Kargman

Stars. Aran Bell, Gaya Bommer Yemini and Michaela Deprince

Kargman puts six gifted young dancers from around the world under the microscope for nearly a year as they prepare to compete at the potentially career-launching Youth America Grand Prix. These kids, from 6 – 19 years of age, don't lead normal lives. They're isolated and dependent on anxious parents and teachers. They push their bodies hard. Injuries are common, and you can feel their all-consuming need to be perfect. It's fair and unsentimental and riveting, following an African adoptee, a dirt poor Colombian, a middle American "princess" and the "star", a boy so talented and blasé that he comes off like a glorious freak of nature.

Drama

Trishna

Director. Michael Winterbottom

Stars. Freida Pinto, Riz Ahmed

Loosely based on Thomas Hardy's Tess of the d'Urbervilles, Trishna will captivate audiences from the opening scene until the final fateful movements. Trishna (Pinto), the daughter of a poor truck driver in rural India, doesn't have a say in the direction of her own life. When she develops a relationship with Jay (Ahmed), the son of a wealthy hotel-owner, she believes her life will finally change for the better. But she soon discovers that society and power can even destroy the hero.

Moving Day

Director. Mike Clattenburg

Stars. Will Sasso, Charlie Murphy

Moving Day was not a good move for Trailer Park Boys creator Mike Clattenburg. A clumsy comedy starring Will Sasso (The Three Stooges) as a chunky, cola-guzzling furniture mover who simply dreams of a "city job", Clattenburg's latest film wanders without much progression or many laughs. In fact, without a pronounced performance from Eddie Murphy's less famous brother Charlie Murphy, Moving Day is pretty motionless.

Vito

Director. Jeffrey Schwarz

Stars. Vito Russo

Schwarz' glowing portrait, gleaned from interviews with subject Vito Russo before his death from AIDS in 1990 celebrates the New York film critic, TV host, LGBT rights and AIDS activist who joined the charge at Stonewall and founded GGA, GLAAD and ACT UP. Also, his decade long research into gay images in cinema resulted in the landmark film and lecture series The Celluloid Closet. Colleagues, friends and family are in awe of him still and distraught to have lost this beacon for change. This award winning film reminds us what strides have been made since 1969 and stops just short of hagiography.

ANNE BRODIE

Quoted

"I've never actually read a comic in my life... That's a lie. I did read The Walking Dead in the last year or two, which I thoroughly enjoyed. But I've never read a superhero comic. I've literally never turned a single page of a single superhero comic."

Lord of the Rings director Peter Jackson during an interview at last week's Comic-Con, the fan convention where he previewed footage of his two-part take on The Hobbit.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Demi Moore. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Demi's kids won't 'completely abandon her': Source

While Demi Moore's relationship with her daughters Rumer, Scout and Tallulah Willis may be strained, they're certainly not as bad as Radar Online has reported.

Earlier this week, the website claimed the three girls were "seriously considering talking about a restraining order against Demi to stop her from contacting them," while a source tells the site that "Demi has been calling them incessantly and emailing them, leaving them tearful messages and begging them to call her, and the girls are sick of it."

But another source tells Us Weekly that things aren't that bad.

"It's true they're not all hunky-dory, getting along like they used to, but they're not about to go to those extremes," the source says.

"They love their mom at the end of the day, and they're never going to completely abandon her."

U.S. restaurant's anti-gay stance doesn't sit well with Helms

Office star Ed Helms is officially boycotting Chick-fil-A, claiming the U.S. restaurant chain's anti-gay stance has caused him to lose his appetite.

Helms is responding to a statement issued by Chick-fil-A president Dan Cathy ... who recently told a Christian publication that when it comes to accusations his company is actively opposed to gay marriage, Chick-fil-A is "guilty as charged."

Cathy claims his chicken people support the "biblical definition of the family unit."

In fact, Chick-fil-A reportedly donated nearly $2 million towards religious groups that oppose gay marriage in 2010 alone. The comments clearly didn't sit well with Helms ... who tweeted, "Chick-Fil-A doesn't like gay people? So lame. Hate to think what they do to the gay chickens! Lost a loyal fan."

Helms ain't alone ... the gay rights campaign NOH8 — supported by stars like Miley Cyrus, Lindsay Lohan and the Kardashians — has also called for a Chick-fil-A boycott.

Frankel's marriage on the upswing

scene@metronews.ca

After only two years, Bethenny Frankel's marriage to Jason Hoppy was rumoured to be all but over. But now, the reality star says they're back on track after a rough patch earlier this year — well, probably.

"I think we have what it takes to make it work," Frankel tells People. "I don't have a backup plan. It's not like shopping for shoes and getting a new pair. That's not what it's about."

Frankel doesn't, however, gloss over their problems. "We've been scared," she admits. "The second year of marriage was not easy. We hit bottom, (but) we came out the other side."

We're impressed that they're working things out — especially when you consider what "rock bottom" means to someone whose resumé includes both Real Housewives and Skinnygirl Margaritas.

In lovelier news

We didn't mean to bum you out with crumbling reality TV marriages and Splenda-laced tequila. Let's check in with shiny happy couple Ryan Reynolds and Blake Lively, shall we?

"Blake and Ryan are so in love with each other," a source tells Radar Online.

"They're really cute and sweet and they're always talking about how they want to be together forever."

It's not the first time marriage rumours have surrounded the fairly new couple.

Earlier this week, Lively was cited as Reynolds' "wife" in a police report after the couple filed a complaint against a photographer.

The taste of summer in a wine bottle

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
peterrockwell@eastlink.cca

It's summertime and while the drinking may seem easy, divorcing Tom Cruise could prove simpler than finding a wine to match casual, warm afternoon dining.

Of course while it all depends on the menu, most seasonal midday eats on my back deck are light and refreshing with a typical foundation of greens or something from the sea.

Though I hate being a weather wine snob, except for a fruity Pinot noir or gamay-based red (which I can chill), I'm all about whites this time of year. That's especially true for something fresh and zesty to match with salads (as long as I take it easy on the dressing), shellfish and simple chicken dishes.

Pinot grigio produces some great all-purpose wines in regions all over the world. But if you prefer a white with a tad more weight (but not gobs of wood or heavy fruit), reach for a glass of New Zealand sauvignon blanc.

Villa Maria Private Bin 2011 Sauvignon Blanc ($18.99 - $23.19) has all the grassy, gooseberry personality that's the hallmark of the grape accompanied by some food-friendly, lip-smacking acidity that, to put it simply, tastes like liquid summer.

Dice the avocado just before you're ready to serve the salad, or squeeze some lemon juice over it to prevent browning if you prepare it earlier in the day.

Always be sure to weigh your shrimp after it's been peeled. For each pound of peeled shrimp you need to purchase approximately 1¼ pounds of shrimp in the shell.

1. Spray non-stick skillet with cooking oil; place over medium-high heat. Cook shrimp just until pink, 3 minutes. Remove from the heat, cool and dice.

2. Combine shrimp with remaining ingredients in a large serving bowl and mix well. Serve immediately.

Survey

Canadians want more info

Canadians want more nutritional information about menu items at all restaurants, not just fast-food eateries, according to a recent survey.

Two-thirds of Canadian adults said they liked the idea of seeing information about fat and sodium levels at all restaurants. And women were most likely to indicate such a preference, the Harris/Decima research showed.

About 65 per cent of the Canadians polled between the ages of 35 to 44 supported having the information, as did 71 per cent of those 45 to 54, and 53 per cent of those aged 55 to 64.

You might be Overpaying for Car Insurance

There are ways to save without impacting coverage

Each insurance company charges a different rate to insure the same driver with the same exact coverage – and these rates vary considerably. By not shopping around for car insurance, you could be paying hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars more than you should. Insurers use their own claims experience to determine their rates and each company will have a different history with each driving profile and car combination. This could mean that you are overpaying for car insurance – and with so many insurance companies, odds are you may not be currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile.

The car you drive, where you live, where you drive, and your driving record are all factors that may affect your insurance rate. While most of these items are under your control, others such as the insurance company's experience and corresponding rates are not. One insurance company may charge more for being insured in your postal code, while others may charge more for insuring sport cars. Understanding all of these considerations and knowing that each insurance company charges different rates will help you find the best car insurance rate that suits your needs.

The best way to save on your car insurance is to compare your insurance rate to those offered by other companies. But it can be extremely time consuming to compare the rates individually and brokers only offer rates from 4 to 5 different companies. Web sites like InsuranceHotline.com make it easy to compare your rate against the lowest available rates within their network of over 30 insurance companies.

It's not just about saving you money. Wait, it is.

The inside track on Katherine Legge

Girl's got drive.
Metro talks to one of the few women to make the top ranks of pro motor racing

KATHY ULLYOTT
life@metronews.ca

"I know I race like a girl," says a promotional slogan for Katherine Legge. "Try and keep up."

Not many can keep up with Legge, though. The 32-year-old is one of very few women in the top ranks of professional motor racing, the first woman to win the prestigious Rising Star award from the British Racing Drivers' Club and a competitor in the IndyCar Series — one of the jewels in the crown of professional racing.

Legge will be one of 26 drivers competing in this Sunday's Edmonton Indy. After that, the British native (she now lives in — where else? — Indianapolis) is off to the Indy Grand Prix of Sonoma in California. Here's an inside-track look at a self-confessed adrenalin-junkie.

How did you get started?
I got started in go-karts. We went on a family vacation to Spain and my dad, my uncle and me — I was nine years old — went to one of those "fun car" places. I loved it. Back in England, Dad and I spent every weekend racing, from Friday night to Sunday night, from when I was nine to when I was 19.

When did you decide this was what you wanted to do?
I made the jump (to professional racing) when I won a scholarship to race in Formula Ford (an entry-level racing series) in 2005 when I came over to the U.S. I won my first race that year and came third overall in the Atlantics championship. That made a career possible.

Is your dad still involved?
My dad makes the trip from England to wherever I'm racing — North America, Australia, China. He's broke because of it. He can take credit for (my career success) because, yes, I've been the one driving the car but he's been the one behind me, giving me advice, propping me up and keeping me on a level ground.

Do women face particular hurdles in motor sports?
Absolutely, but it's changing. When I was on the way up, women were very much a novelty. Now there are more women in racing, and more being done to help them. FIA (Federation Internationale de l'Automobile, which governs auto-racing events around the world) has started a female racing commission.

Your fiancé, Peter Terting, is also a race-car driver. Is he as good as you?
That depends on who you ask! It's a good (thing) we don't race in the same series, because I don't think we would still be planning our wedding if that were the case.

What will you do after racing?
I haven't thought about it. I don't want to think about it. But one of my passions is letting girls and young women believe that they can be anything they want to be, that they can follow their dreams. I've just been announced as the female driver ambassador for the FIA. And I'm also an official spokesperson for the U.S. Girl Scouts' STEM program, which encourages girls in science, technology, engineering and math. When I stop racing I think I will be more active in (such activities).

Have you brought any young women into the sport?
I didn't set out to be a role model, I set out to be a race-car driver. But I have had young girls come up to me at the track and say, 'I'm racing because of you,' or 'you're my hero.' I think, wow. That's a lot of responsibility right there. So I've tried to conduct myself in such a manner that shows girls that whatever they want to do, go for it.

British Open

"If he could have headed it the other way, it would have been in the fairway."

Rory McIlroy cracked a joke as he recalled bouncing a tee shot off the head of 16-year-old spectator Jason Blue at hole No. 15 at the British Open. Blue, from Bristol, got a considerable bruise and an autographed glove for his troubles. In addition to an apology, McIlroy drew a smiley face on the souvenir. McIlroy did have to return some 300 yards to the tee to hit his third shot and wound up making 6, which knocked him temporarily off the leaderboard. But the No. 2-ranked Northern Irishman finished with a three-under 67 and got back within three shots of the lead held by Adam Scott of Australia. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MLB. With pitchers falling like flies, 27-year-old left-hander providing stability to Toronto staff

Quoted

"It sucks and it's a shame that's the way it happens, but that's how I've gotten other opportunities before; that's how a majority of guys in here have gotten opportunities."

Aaron Laffey on getting a chance in the Jays rotation due to injuries

This past off-season, Aaron Laffey set his mind on once again becoming a big-league starter.

The 27-year-old lefty began his career in a starting role, but was moved to the bullpen two seasons ago as he struggled to maintain major-league employment.

After a tumultuous 2011, in which Laffey was traded, twice waived and twice claimed — spending time with Cleveland, Seattle, the New York Yankees and Kansas City — he entered free agency for the first time.

As a middling middle reliever who had never spent a full season in the majors, Laffey wasn't exactly fending off many lucrative offers. But for the first time in his career, he had a say in where he would play.

"My No. 1 thing was to go somewhere I could start, somewhere that viewed me as a starter and somewhere I would have an opportunity to start," he said Wednesday inside the visitors' clubhouse at Yankee Stadium. "That was my goal, plain and simple: Just to get back to what I love to do, what I want to do, and where I feel I can be most effective."

The Jays seemed like a good fit, so he signed a deal knowing his opportunity to be a starter would likely be in triple-A.

The decimation of the Jays starting rotation in June provided him with the chance to achieve his off-season goal.

Since joining the Jays rotation on June 26, Laffey hasn't been spectacular, but he's provided the pitching staff with some much-needed stability.

As more of a "feel" pitcher, rather than an overpowering thrower, Laffey believes his strength is as a starter because the role gives him a chance to get comfortable with all five of his pitches.

Laffey says he's happy he made it back to the big leagues as a starter, and he's just trying to improve with every outing.

"Just trying to stay on the path that I've been on," he said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Hayden tones down the hype for London

Swimming.
Mission, B.C., medal hopeful looks to put disappointment of past Olympics behind him

Brent Hayden during the Canadian Olympic and Paralympic swimming trials in Montreal on April 1.
STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Brent Hayden, a silver medallist at last year's world swimming championships, has been to two Olympics already.

They weren't much fun.

In 2004, Hayden swam poorly, which was the very least of it.

Just before the end of the Games, he found himself in the middle of an early-morning street battle between Greek police and anarchists. The then-19-year-old was pulled into the middle of it, had the boots put to him, was cuffed and eventually released. Though Canada requested some sort of official accounting, Hayden received no satisfaction.

The "riot thing" is how Hayden remembers it now.

"That put a huge damper on Athens for me," Hayden said.

Four years later, he arrived in Beijing as the biggest star of Canada's swim team, a defending world champion at the sport's glamour event — the 100-metre freestyle.

Hayden expected two medals. He made the mistake of talking about two medals — in the 100-metre and the four-by-100 relay.

He dropped out of the 200-metre freestyle in order to concentrate on the relay.

In the 100-metre, he didn't qualify for the finals.

"I got caught watching (eventual silver medallist Eamon) Sullivan. I lost focus for just that one instant and then ..." said Hayden, drifting off.

Apparently, Sullivan was thinking of Hayden, too. The Australian set a world record in that semifinal heat. Sullivan may have cost himself gold by putting out too much effort too early in order to best the Canadian who'd topped him at the world championships.

Then Hayden's relay team rolled a fourth.

It was a disappointing Olympics for Canada in the pool — they've been disappointing for some time now — and a great deal of the usual hand-wringing was directed in Hayden's direction.

"I think I paid a little too much attention to my own media hype," Hayden said. "This time, I'm basically not caring what anybody says — whether it's positive or negative."

The four intervening years have been up and down for the veteran 28-year-old from Mission, B.C.

His body started to rebel. A series of cascading injuries ended up settling in the spot that plagues most aging swimmers — his back.

Hayden now has a team of therapists and a comprehensive regimen to keep himself afloat.

"Now when my back starts acting up, I don't go into panic mode. The back used to keep me out of the pool for two or three days. Now, I get some treatment and I'm back in the water the next day."

In the weeks before arriving in London, Hayden is criss-crossing Europe looking for tune-up races. One of the other things he's learned is that the mental and physical crush of a big meet cannot be simulated in training. He needs to arrive in a winning frame of mind, rather than trying to build himself up to one on the crucial day.

"It's important that the gears are already moving when I get there," Hayden said. "This has been a long learning process."

London favourite

Since he's a come-from-behind swimmer, Hayden is a long-shot in the 50-metre.

- But in the 100-metre, he can take his pick of rivals. The favourite is 21-year-old Australian James Magnussen, pictured, a world champion and expected poster boy for the London Games.
- The men who finished after Hayden at the world championships, France's William Meynard and Brazil's Cesar Cielo, are also in tight.
- At last year's big event in Shanghai, only six-hundredths of a second separated second and fourth.

Tennis. Nadal a no-go to defend Olympic crown

Defending champion Rafael Nadal pulled out of the London Olympics on Thursday with an undisclosed injury, leaving the tennis competition without one of its leading stars and robbing Spain's team of its flag-bearer for the opening ceremony.

Nadal won the French Open for a record seventh time this year but has struggled with left-knee problems at times during the season. Shortly after winning his 11th Grand Slam title at Roland Garros, he lost to 100th-ranked Lukas Rosol in the second round at Wimbledon.

Nadal has not played since.

The third-ranked Nadal said Thursday he wasn't in condition to compete at the Olympic tennis tournament — which also will be held at Wimbledon.

"I have to think about my companions. I can't be selfish and I have to think of what's best for Spanish sport, especially tennis and Spanish players, and give fellow sportsmen with better preparation the chance to compete," Nadal said in a statement.

"I tried to hurry my preparations and training to the very last minute, but it was not to be."

The 26-year-old Spaniard has won two Wimbledon titles and claimed gold at the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

Security. Officials add troops in case manpower shortages get worse

There's nearly a week to go before the Olympics kick off in London and British officials are stuck playing defence.

On Thursday, the country's Olympics secretary said 1,200 extra troops were put on standby in case embarrassing manpower shortages get any worse, while U.K. border agents announced a strike for the day before the Games begin.

The one-two punch of bad news comes with only eight days to go, unbalancing a government which might have hoped to bask in the glow of pre-Olympic buildup. By far, the most embarrassing episode has been the inability of security contractor G4S PLC to deliver on its promise to supply about 10,400 guards to help keep the Games safe — a last-minute admission that has forced the government to call in 3,500 soldiers to help meet the shortfall.

Mommy Zelinka a medal hopeful

Track and field. Jessica Zelinka says being a mother made her a more balanced person

Jessica Zelinka. GETTY IMAGES FILE

Les Gramantik likes to joke about how he took up drinking the day Jessica Zelinka called him to say she was pregnant.

"I practically fell off the chair," chuckles Gramantik, who can laugh about it now.

Zelinka was coming off a fifth-place finish at the Beijing Games and she and Gramantik were already talking about a medal in London when the 30-year-old heptathlete from London, Ont., became pregnant.

While he may have had his doubts at the time, in hindsight Gramantik now says her announcement of impending parenthood was great news — Zelinka is heading into the Olympics in the best shape of her life, and one of Canada's top hopes for a medal in track and field.

"If this had been a scientific decision based on what's possible, that was the perfect timing to get pregnant. It may turn out to be perfect," Gramantik said.

Zelinka was the star of last month's Olympic trials in Calgary, shattering her Canadian heptathlon record and beating a world-class field to win the 100-metre hurdles. Her performance has put an end to any questions of whether she could rebound from having a baby to once again find success in track and field's most gruelling event.

She scored 6599 in a meet in which she ran away from the field virtually unchallenged in the hurdles, 200 and 800 metres.

Zelinka, whose three-year-old daughter Anika is a perfect curly-haired combination of her and husband Nathaniel Miller, said that being a mom has given her a sense of balance that has in turn made her a better athlete.

"Before being a mother, you get caught up in you, you, you, this is what I need. Now I'm not taking so much, I can give to her and feel good about that," Zelinka said. "She's just a little girl and I can do so much for her and she looks up to me so much.

"It's nice and I feel it's very much me. I really like that role as a mother, I don't resist it, I like the balance."

Flyers sign Weber to offer sheet

NHL. Deal worth $110 million US over 14 years, says source, and Nashville has seven days to match Philadelphia's offer

Shea Weber is on the brink of becoming the dominant blueline force the Philadelphia Flyers desperately need.

Weber signed a staggering offer sheet with the Philadelphia Flyers and the restricted free agent could be a week away from bolting the Nashville Predators. A person with knowledge of the decision says the Flyers signed Weber to a 14-year offer sheet worth $110 million US.

The person spoke to The Associated Press on Thursday on condition of anonymity because the Flyers hadn't announced terms of the offer.

Flyers general manager Paul Holmgren confirmed early Thursday that the Flyers did sign Weber to an offer sheet. He gave no further details. The Predators issued a statement late Thursday morning confirming they had received the Flyers' offer sheet, which gives the team seven days to make a decision on matching the deal or letting the defenceman go.

"We have stated previously that, should a team enter into an offer sheet with Shea, our intention would be to match and retain Shea," Predators general manager David Poile said. "Our ownership has provided us with the necessary resources to build a Stanley Cup-winning team. Due to the complexity of the offer sheet, we will take the appropriate time to review and evaluate it, and all of its ramifications, in order to make the best decision for the Predators in both the short and long-term."

Weber, 26, is the Predators captain and played on a $7.5-million arbitrator's award last season. He had 19 goals and 49 points along the way.

Nashville already lost free-agent defenceman Ryan Suter to Minnesota this summer, and losing Weber would be an unexpected blow to a defence-first team that had 104 points last season, took the No. 4 seed in the Western Conference and advanced to the second round of the playoffs.

Weber would fill the void left by Philadelphia defenceman Chris Pronger's absence. Pronger — a key cog in the Flyers' run to the 2010 Stanley Cup finals as a No. 7 seed — has been battling concussion problems and missed most of last season. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quoted

"We didn't go actively looking for an offer sheet. But when we spoke with Philadelphia, it seemed to be a right fit there." Jarrett Bousquet, Shea Weber's agent

The Philadelphia Flyers signed Shea Weber to a 14-year offer sheet worth $110 million US. The Nashville Predators have seven days to make a decision on matching the deal or letting Weber go. CHRISTIAN PETERSEN/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Ticats offence ready to wake from slumber?

CFL EXTRA POINTS
Dan Toth
toronto@metronews.ca

Columnist Dan Toth looks at three storylines to watch heading into this weekend's Canadian football action

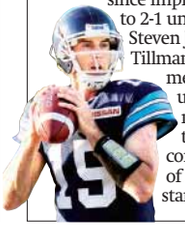
Photos by the Hamilton Spectator and The Canadian Press

Fantuz's flurry of TDs yet to come

It took three games to arrive but we are finally getting a glimpse of what the Ticats' vaunted offence can do, primarily new receiver Andy Fantuz, who caught his first TD of the season last week.

Tillman's tongue could be costly

It's hard to believe GM Eric Tillman has said he regrets trading QB Ricky Ray to Toronto. Granted, his comments came in the wake of a blowout loss in Regina, but the Esks have since improved to 2-1 under Steven Jyles and Tillman's comments have undermined the confidence of his new starter.



NFL for Trestman?

Als fans shouldn't be too confident a new four-year contract for head coach Marc Trestman ensures the bench boss stays in Montreal for the duration of his deal. It's every American coach's dream to land in the NFL and every CFL head man has an "out" clause.

'Hybrid man' is a leading receiver

CFL. Toronto Argonauts Andre Durie prefers running back position but is having an all-star year catching the ball

The B.C. Lions have their "Superman" in receiver Geroy Simon? but "Hybrid Man" has become Argonauts quarterback Ricky Ray's favourite target.

As of Thursday night, as the Calgary Stampeders got set to play the Saskatchewan Roughriders, Andre Durie, whom coach Scott Milanovich dubbed a "hybrid" at training camp, was leading the CFL with 28 receptions and was second in yardage with 357, nine behind leader Chris Matthews of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The Stamps' Nik Lewis had 25 receptions and was 93 yards behind him.

Not too shabby for a reluctant pass catcher.

All things being equal, Durie, 30, would still rather be taking a hand-off from Ray and burst through Toronto's all-Canadian offensive line with the football tightly tucked under his arm for a big first down.

Durie misses the explosiveness that comes from running out of the backfield but he admits he's growing accustomed to being a receiver.

He had five catches for 91 yards in Toronto's win on Wednesday night over the Winnipeg Blue Bombers at the Rogers Centre. His biggest catch was a 50-yard bomb in the second quarter that set up an 18-yard field goal by newly signed Swayze Waters, which gave the Argos an 11-3 second quarter lead.

This season he's become a big-time player, and Milanovich dubbed him a "hybrid" for his versatility.

The thinking behind that description? "He can run routes like a receiver," says the coach. "He can carry the ball like a running back. He can block like a fullback, and teams see him and ask: what is this guy?"

"As a receiver, you get a little bit more glory."

Argonaut Andre Durie says he's getting accustomed to being a receiver.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Be careful what you say today. It might offend co-workers and those in positions of power. The fact is that some people can't handle the truth, no matter how much you try to wrap it up in sugar coating.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You seem to see plots and conspiracies wherever you look. You see way too much! Yes, it's possible that someone is planning to make life difficult for you, but more likely it's your imagination playing tricks on you.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Do something that brings the smiles back to the faces of those you live, work and do business with. The world isn't really such a bad place. In fact at times it's a lot of fun, so stop taking life so seriously.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Don't give up on a plan that does not seem to be making much progress. The planets indicate you are not far away from a breakthrough. If you admit defeat now, all your hard work will be wasted.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
The moon's eclipse of Mercury means you will find it hard to commit yourself to anything of substance today. The more others pressure you to take sides, the more you should sit on the fence. It's a safe place.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You seem prone to negative thoughts at the moment, even though there is no evidence you have anything to fear. If you want to feel more secure, avoid situations where you are not fully in control of what's going on.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
If you give way by even a small amount today, you will be expected to do it again. Before you know it, you will have lost most of what you gained in recent weeks.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The moon's eclipse of mind planet Mercury warns you may have overlooked some small but important detail. Before going any further, retrace your footsteps and see what it could be. You'll be glad you did.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may want to confide in a friend but the planets warn that isn't such a good idea. Some people can be awful blabbermouths and the last thing you want is for everyone to know your secrets.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
It can be easy sometimes to wallow in self-pity and over the next 24 hours you will have to make a conscious effort to look on the bright side. Never forget that life is supposed to be fun.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Someone in a position of power will give you a hard time today, most likely because you refuse to toe the line and do what they expect of you. Good for you. Don't let them push you around.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
The reason why something no longer works for you is because times have changed but you have stayed locked in the past. What can you do to bring yourself into the 21st century? Start doing it today.
